Class is taught using Lecture, Class assignments, assessments [tests], and a written report.

End of Course Outcomes: Upon successful completion of this course the student will:

1. Explain the rationale for elements of the HITECH Act in terms of the history of health IT;
2. Describe the background of today's health care policy landscape including EHR, HIE, CDS, applications in Public Health, and relevant professional organizations;
3. Describe the history of Health IT and the electronic health record in the U.S.;
4. Describe how legislation related to privacy and security of electronic health information has evolved in the U.S.;
5. Discuss evolution of health care policy in the United States.

Revised January 2017

Evaluation Methods:

1. Exams and Discussion based questions.
2. A written essay of 3 -5 pages, to include referenced sources of information.
3. Laboratory Exercises
4. Classroom Lectures {unless the course is taught Internet only}

Student Learning Outcomes:

The students will utilize critical thinking skills by analyzing the history of technology and health care policy related to health care delivery and payment, demonstrate inquiry skills in doing research to understand how health care policy has developed in the United States and its relation to information technology, and synthesis of information in being able to collect information and write a short paper that includes information about a given topic.

Assessment: Lectures

The assessment will be conducted by writing a short, 3-5 page paper on a topic related to health information technology.

Target: Lectures

At least 90% of the student will score 75% or higher on the paper. A successful paper will be grammatically correct, clearly formatted, and accurate as to information, and show that the student has thought about and analyzed the information.

Assessment: Laboratory

The assessment is done by a short discussion question covering the topic of the relationship of technology to nursing care.

Target: Laboratory

At least 90% of the student will score 75% or higher on the discussion question.
